ENDONTIA, the treatment of the pulp of a tooth, was the subject centered on when Dr. George Schugar, Pittsburgh, addressed the Pennsylvania Dental Association's Eighth District conference in Warren.

The clinician of the meeting told the visiting dentists of the conservative approach toward teeth. He explained that now, through modern methods of sterilization and culture, a badly abscessed tooth does not have to be removed. The speaker's further explanation dealt with the process of removing all or part of the pulp of the tooth, therefore preventing its loss.

DR. HARRINGTON

Dr. John L. Harrington, a native of this community, has started practice of general medicine in his new office at 304 Third ave., W., Warren.

The son of Mrs. Anna Harrington and the late T. E. Harrington, he graduated from Warren high school, Pittsburgh University School of Pharmacy and Pittsburgh Medical School.

He interned at Shadyside Hospital in Pittsburgh and served a tour of duty with the U. S. Air Force.

ORGANIZING. When the Eighth District of the Pennsylvania Dental Association convened in Warren the wives of members made a determined effort to form an auxiliary organization in their own meeting at the Woman's Club.

Those attending heard an inspiring message from Mrs. Lester Kern, of Pittsburgh, president-elect of the Pennsylvania auxiliary, and chose temporary officers.

Cressley, Bradford, nominating committee chairman; Mrs. Robert Probst, Warren, chairman; Mrs. Kern; Mrs. Gayle Garrett, Warren; and Mrs. Stanley Bielolocky, DuBois; standing -- Mrs. Glenn Phillips, Jacksonville, Fla., a guest; Mrs. James Rogan, Warren, secretary; Mrs. F. E. Mawn, Ridgway; Mrs. James Richards, Warren; Mrs. Walter Jones, Warren; Mrs. T. R. Cupp, Mt. Jewett; Mrs. J. L. Wiley, Erie, a guest; and Mrs. John Huey, Warren, secretary.

Clarence L. Sturm, first vice president of Lions International, will be the principal speaker at the 35th anniversary celebration of the Warren Lions Club on October 8.

The visiting speaker, who is from Manawa, Wis., has a long and interesting record with the Lions organization and is active in various business and civic fields.

Another prominent visitor who has been engaged for the anniversary program is James Wales, district governor of District 14-J.

VARIED INTERESTS were shown in the successful second annual Sidewalk Art Show sponsored in front of the Warren County Court House last Saturday by the Warren Art Group.

SIDEWALK ART SHOW chairman Mary Whitten (c.) and two committee members, Katherine Lott (l.) and Marian Bibeau, were highly pleased over their second annual project and promise it will be scheduled again next year.

The painting of the dog in the center was by Katherine Thomas.

DON WHARTON, of Spring Creek, was on hand at the Sidewalk Art Show to do on-the-spot sketches. Here he is caught by the camera drawing young Lee Farnsworth, son of Mr. and Mrs. Wilson Farnsworth, of Warren.

Persons interested in having a portrait made by Mr. Wharton, can contact him at his home for an appointment.

Observations

By Bob Walsh

WILL WARREN'S SCHOOL BE ADEQUATE?

The time is running out for those citizens who are concerned about the adequacy of the new Warren area high school. Too many months have gone by with too little being done, and we doubt if there will be major alterations in the plans at this late date.

Two groups have acted far too slowly for the good of the community. Those who have felt Warren should have an auditorium sufficiently large to seat the entire student body in a single assembly and at the same time provide a facility that would be large enough to handle future audiences for major public events, have done much talking and have made many calls to the Observer office, but apparently there has been no concerted action. The swimming pool backers also have waited too long.

It amazes us that Warren sits by and allows the school board to construct this school with an auditorium that will seat only one thousand people. We are well aware that the state will approve an auditorium even smaller than this. But the state is concerned only with the financial help it is to provide and it is providing only what will serve the school.

Educators rightly attempt to provide the basic school facilities for an education. This naturally deals primarily with the curriculum. Once you have determined what you will have in the way of curriculum, you can arrive at a room schedule. And knowing your room schedule you are able to estimate the area required. Location then enters the picture.

We know the size of our student body, and we know what subjects it is to be taught. We also have an estimate of the student population in the coming ten years. And we are aware of the current methods of transportation. Combined, they suggest we will require many acres of land, and the Warren area board has acted accordingly.

Educators will reason that they can get by with two assemblies, even though such a procedure is not the ultimate in efficiency. And actually, any thinking business man could prove that the hours wasted would more than pay for an auditorium which would handle the students in single assembly programs.

But educators are inclined to see only what is written on the original check, and they figure they can do much for the school with the money it would cost to add a few seats. Actually they are very much mistaken. The architect has revealed that the addition of a few more seats does not proportionally increase the cost. For example, we could add 200 seats for about $12,000.

We reason that a school should serve more than young people. A school building should be built to serve the entire population. We also reason that education is more than class room study when you are of school age. It continues for all of us if we have the facilities to encourage participation. Programs of many kinds which are held in auditoriums can be considered a part of education.

We believe that a live and expanding area, as we hope this one will be, or can be, must have many facilities, one of which is an auditorium, that will seat at least 1,500 people. We are certain that the day will come when such will be our need, and it will be a sorry populace which looks back at this school building period and realizes that it could have provided such a facility for a fraction of what an auditorium will cost if housed alone.

This is blind planning of the worst sort and it is inconceivable to us that a community will sit by and watch it occur. It is not enough to say that a school can be built so that it can be expanded. That applies only to rooms. It does not apply to auditoriums. Nor does it apply to gymnasiums.

As far as we know the swimming pool effort has not reached the point where it is known what kind of pool is to be built. If a combination outdoor and indoor pool is to be constructed which would be of much more value and be well worth the additional cost, the school is the logical place for it. But the school board should know about this before it gives final approval to its plans.

Tomorrow's major problem in relation to any facilities which attract large numbers of people will be parking. In fact it already is a major consideration. The school board wisely has chosen a site which has enough acres to handle parking those days or nights when the gymnasium, the auditorium, and portions of the school are in use. There also is room for the cars of swimmers.

We have the room. But no one seems to be taking the timely steps required to see that it is wisely used.

STREAMIEST

Judging by photographs, the streamiest of the stream-lines we have seen in advance releases is in the Pontiac pack. Chrysler products still have the fins, though the look is a little less exaggerated, and blends more into the flow of the lines.

The Cadillac fin looks less like the Plymouth's and more like the overall Chrysler line, and it has finned a light out from the fin. While most others are playing down increased power, Cadillac is telling about a powerful new motor, with a higher compression ratio, carburetor heating, engine warm-up controls, engine breathing, and a three-dual barrel carburetor in its 345 h.p. job.

DeSoto comes out this week with eighteen models, swivel seats, a four-barrel carburetor, and horsepower up to 350 with a torque of 425. All its motors will have 10.0 to 1 or 10.1 to 1 compression ratios.

All are talking about greater economy and safety, more automatic controls, greater visibility, more room.

The Pontiac lines include one motor with a h.p. of 345 and a torque of 425. It has one ratio of 10.5 to 1.

AFTER THE BUSINESS

The foreign imports are not standing still in the face of the new American cars. In fact, they now are so well entrenched that they feel sufficiently confident, and wealthy, to spend some on TV and radio time. You will hear from Renault on CBS. Renault is giving Volkswagen, the early favorite, a fast race, and has taken the lead in California.

Jaguar will be heard on CBS radio. Simca, now backed by Chrysler, and Volkswagen will use spots.

The Volkswagen story is not entirely told by its rush for advertising ing nor its race with Renault. Actually the fourteen regional dealers cannot supply the demand and there is no way of telling how many of the little beetles could be sold if they were easily available. Knowing they are hard to get, many potential buyers don't even look at them. The advertising will be handled locally by the dealers.

PRESS POWER

So loud have been the protests by the press and radio concerning wire rate increases by American Telephone and Telegraph and Western Union that even the interim increase may be eliminated. When the mass of the press pressures, the Washington commissions jump. Now if the press would do the same about some other utility rates the public would be mighty appreciative.

MORE SALES TAX TROUBLE

If you use sales and use tax exemption certificates in your business don't forget that new ones are mandatory after November 1, 1958. If you think your present ones are sufficiently similar to the new certificates, contact the Bureau of Sales and Use Tax to make sure.

There are two types of exemption certificates. One is for those with a blanket exemption which obtains when there is a continuing series of tax-exempt transactions between you and the seller or you and the buyer. Your old one should be replaced, but keep it for three years in case you are audited.

The other type of certificate is for unit exemptions and applies to single transactions only. One must be executed for each exempt sale.

Exemption certificates must be executed by every person who is required by law to collect tax upon sales rentals or tangible personal property in every case in which he has not collected tax, or have evidence available to prove that he was not required to collect it.

And if that sounds complicated, we didn't write it. That's the way it arrived by carrier, pigeon.

If you don't like the idea of a tax based on what you spend rather than what you can afford to spend, tell Messrs. Allen Gibson and Dr. Chapman, and all their brethren in Harrisburg.

In Brief

THE COLUMBIA Theatre building may change hands by the middle of October. It is quite probable that the Knights of Columbus will be the new owners. Building alteration plans will not be announced until later, but tentative plans considered by some members would remove the first floor seats, level the floor, and provide club rooms. The open part of the balcony would be floored and the seats possibly used as a part of a meeting hall. The third floor would be for storage.

FIVE CASES will appear when Quarter Sessions court convenes at the Warren County Court House Friday.

Three men, Leroy Flasher, Jr., R. D. 2, Sugar Grove, Ellsworth VanGuilder, Jamestown, N. Y., and Robert P. VanGuilder, Stockton, N. Y., are to face charges of burglarizing some 20 camps in this area during the past two years.

Elberta Jane Moorcroft, Clermont, Pa., who passed a series of bad checks to Warren merchants recently, will also appear. The final case is against Arthur T. Conklin, of the Tidioute section, who is charged with malicious mischief. He was apprehended after firing rifle shots into a camp on the Tidioute-Pittsfield rd.

DIVORCES granted in Warren County Court Wednesday were in the cases of Warren C. Cowan vs. Minnie S. Cowan, Donna J. Dutton vs. Herman H. Dutton, Alice K. Sheckler, vs. Richard B. Sheckler, Ruth S. Wedlock vs. William H. Wedlock, Raymond L. Hamilton vs. Jean R. Hamilton, Arma Jean Lawson vs. James E. Lawson, Velma Jean Dalrymple vs. Kenneth Louis Dalrymple, Willis G. Fitzgerald, Jr., vs. Bertha Lee Fitzgerald, Geraldine B. Keys vs. Frederick H. Keys.

MAIN SPEAKER for B-E (Business-Education) Day in Warren October 14 will be Marion E. Pettegrew, vice president of Sylvania Electric and a former Warren resident. He will address the banquet for local business men and teachers to be held that evening in Beatty cafeteria.

A KICK-OFF DINNER for residential workers in the coming Community Chest Drive will be held at 6:30 the evening of October 9 in Beatty cafeteria.

Chairman for this division in the campaign is Edgar Pendleton.

POLICE OFFICERS from a four-county area are to be invited to attend the FBI Firearms School to be held in Warren October 6 and 7. Chief Mike Evan and the borough force are sponsoring the course.

INJURED IN CRASH. Zimmerman Hill in Pleasant twp. was the scene of a one-car accident Monday evening that sent two young people to Warren General Hospital. Injured in the mishap were Shannon Madigan, 106 Cayuga ave., the driver, and David Phinney, of 11 Elm st.

It was reported Miss Madigan was proceeding up the hill, lost control, went into a field and struck an embankment.

Loss to the car was about $600.

Sputnik Anniversary

By Marquis Childs

WASHINGTON. -- An important anniversary marking man's first venture beyond the envelope of the earth is coming up. Last October 4, to the amazement of the world, Soviet Russia sent a satellite into orbit. The beep-beep-beep of that first space traveler was both a challenge and a warning to the West, bringing a sudden, sharp realization of the advanced level of scientific and technical development in Russia.

On that memorable day Secretary of Defense Neil McElroy was by an interesting coincidence at the Redstone Arsenal in Alabama, one of the stops on his tour of defense installations. As head of the rocket-missile team at Redstone, Wernher Von Braun had been saying for months that if only they could get the nod they would be able with the Army's Jupiter to send a satellite into orbit. He also had been telling all who would listen that if the Russians achieved this first they would score a tremendous propaganda victory. Those who were with McElroy that day say he was fired with a determination to put America in the lead. Far from belittling the achievement, as did others in the Administration, he was fully aware of what this first sputnik, weighing 184 pounds, signified.

It had come as a climax to a series of profoundly disquieting revelations. Although the Department of Defense tried to suppress the news and then to belittle it, Russia had in the summer successfully tested an intercontinental ballistic missile over a range of 3,000 to 5,000 miles. The link with Sputnik I was obvious, since it meant that Russia had rocket engines with a greater thrust than any in this country. On November 3, Sputnik II, weighing 1,120 pounds, went into orbit.

This was the winter of America's discontent. President Eisenhower's two "chins up" speeches were less than inspiring. Anxious to keep defense out of partisan politics Senator Lyndon Johnson of Texas conducted a Senate investigation that wound up with a report which had a muted and muffled sound.

Gradually, as the shock of the sputniks and the failure of the widely advertised first Vanguard wore off, the routine of business and politics as usual took over. On May 17 Sputnik III, weighing 2,925 pounds, went into orbit. America's largest satellite so far, Explorer IV, weight 37.1 pounds, went up July 26.

A few voices were raised, such as those of columnists Joseph Alsop and Drew Pearson, to warn of the peril of the "missile gap." In two to three years, when the Russian rate of progress would put them far in the lead with operational ICBMs in numbers, the Soviets will have vastly superior military power. In a notable speech on the Senate floor Senator John F. Kennedy of Massachusetts made the same charge in graver and more detailed terms.

Yet nothing has happened. Congress did appropriate more than $1 billion above what the Administration had requested. And the Congress, suspicious of competing missile systems, called on McElroy to decide between the defensive missiles, Bomarc and Nike Hercules, at the same time clipping $45,000,000 from the $229,000,000 asked for bases for the two missiles. McElroy's answer was to say that both systems are necessary.

As the criticism has grown in volume he has been more and more on the defensive. This has disturbed his admirers who had seen him as a new broom prepared to sweep away past misgivings and make a bold new start. In his speech to the American Legion McElroy scorned prophets of a "disaster point."

"I do not read such a future and the President of the United States does not," he said. "We both have the utmost confidence that the United States has both the capability and the determination to keep a gap in overall comparative military strength from opening. I said keep it from opening because it does not now

He did go on to say that "the Soviets are ahead of us" in the development of an ICBM. But the United States, he added, has three ICBMs under development and the Defense Department feels it is unwise to "gambol" any more tax money on any one of the three.

Shortly the secretary is leaving on a world tour of defense installations.

He will escape for a month from the confines of the Pentagon and perhaps he will rediscover the free and unfettered outlook that raised hopes high when he came in. Short of this, he is likely to find himself in January with the return of a new Congress in the same kind of trouble that overwhelmed his predecessor.

Sponsored by the Christian Laymen's Committee, the Sermons from Science lecture-series has gained the recognition, use and encouragement of the Armed Services and many civic and business leaders throughout the nation, and has been presented in various television programs throughout the country.

The demonstrations will be open to the public and no admission will be charged.

THE LITTLE SINGERS OF PARIS . . . world-renowned boys' singing group, sponsored by Mercyhurst College of Erie, will appear in Cathedral Prep Auditorium, Erie, on Sunday, October 12, starting at 8 p.m.

Familiar to all the world under the name of Petits Chanteurs a la Croix de Bois - Little Singers of the Wooden Cross - The Little Singers of Paris were organized in 1907 by a group of enthusiasts inspired with the desire of reviving the then little appreciated splendors of the Gregorian chant and of Palestrinian music. They quickly achieved a remarkable reputation in France and abroad, and today rank as one of the most outstanding of all boys' choirs.

Tickets for this concert are $1.50.

A DOLLAR . . . buys your ticket to the John Crosby lecture in Beatty auditorium at 8 o'clock Thursday, October 30. The noted television critic is being brought to Warren under the sponsorship of the Warren High School faculty. Tickets may be purchased from members of the high school faculty, or at the high school office.

All growers are urged to follow the general rules for grooming and entry: contrary to general impression the size of the plant and the number of blossoms are not the only characteristics by which the plants are graded; wash your plant a few days before the show with warm water; care should be taken not to wet the blooms, remove all suckers, pick off all damaged or irregular leaves, all faded blooms; if your plant has several crowns (but is nice looking) it is better to enter it in the section for multiple-crowns; remove dead bloom stalks neatly.

Very few plants score 100 so if your plant is not perfect, don't be hesitant about entering it anyway. Water your plant well and if you are in the habit of feeding your violets do so now.

MEMBERS . . . of the Warren County District, Pennsylvania Nurses Assoc. have been invited to attend a Warren Co. Association for Retarded Children-sponsored talk to be held tonight (Thursday) at 8 o'clock in the court house. WARREN PLAYERS' CLUB in kicking off their big membership drive, is emphasizing this year the fact that membership is open to all. Warren Players' is not a selective organization. Two types of membership are available - an associate membership or an active membership, the cost of which is the same - $4.00 for the year.

To open the season this year, Players' will present "The Four-poster" on October 16 and 17, which will be directed by Edith O'Hara.

THE ANNUAL MEMBERSHIP Enrollment Week . . . of the Warren Young Men's Christian Association will be conducted from November 11 to 25. James Potter, chairman, announced that the Enrollment Week Organization is now being formed and will be announced soon.

POOR COVERAGE

Not a television station on the major line in Warren, which carries six of them, had the announcement made by Sherman Adams. They talked about it, announced it, but failed to tune it in.

Television news coverage generally is pathetic. It has advantages no other medium ever has enjoyed and goofs it. Television has become little more than a carnival of tripe. Its only value is to be found in a smattering of good shows that are spotted through the week, and the presentation of major events which most of us never would see if we had to travel to them.

It wastes precious minutes of news programs doing no more than radio has been giving us for years. A man reading news.

If it even would bother to have still cameras on the news front so that we could see the events of the day while listening to the report it would be a major improvement. Movies of all events might not be possible, but a squad of newsmen equipped with 35 mm cameras could bring to the tv screen most of what occurs in a given area. And a live newsmphoto service should do the same for the national scene.

What can be done for the dailies by the camera services certainly can be done even better for the tv networks. No paper could afford to publish that many editions per day.

Television is asking too much for its kind of programming and a very gullible and too easily satisfied public is watching it in sufficient numbers to convince the advertisers that it is worth the price. But that day will pass, and the entry of a fourth network, Mutual, into the television field may move up the quality and lower the ad bill.

Meanwhile we are thankful for one small glimmer of hope. Newspaper circulation continues to keep pace with the home building figures. The press is still with us and is not going broke.

That thought, too, has an unpleasant side. The press is not going busted, and its circulation is growing, but much of it is in the hands of major papers and publications in one-newspaper towns. And far too many television and radio stations are owned by the same ones who control the local press.

Separate these and provide the news bureaus of both radio and television with real editors and competent reporters . . . equip them to do an appropriate job, and give them sufficient air time for complete coverage. . . . Sponsors would be easy to find because such a service would prove exceptionally popular with the viewers and listeners.

Type, Age of Kenny Patients Almost Completely Changed

Minneapolis, Minn.—Type and age of patients receiving Kenny treatment and rehabilitation under the expanded program of the Sister Elizabeth Kenny foundation throughout the nation have changed almost completely during the past 15 months, according to Dr. Paul M. Ellwood, Jr., assistant national medical director.

"Overwhelming majority of cases now are strokes, cerebral palsy, arthritis and paralysis from spinal cord injuries," Dr. Ellwood said. "It is gratifying to see how readily the Kenny staff of medical people, vocational counselors, psychologists, social workers and others has been able to turn its attention from polio patients to victims of other crippling illnesses. Demand for Kenny services now is unprecedented."

Handling of stroke cases is one of the major medical problems facing the nation today, Dr. Ellwood pointed out. It is estimated that there are two million stroke patients, with paralysis on at least one side of the body, in the United States, he declared. The Kenny foundation is "going all out" in helping to rehabilitate stroke victims, he added.

"While centering major attention on other neuromuscular disabilities, the Kenny foundation remains staffed and equipped for treatment of new cases of acute polio and rehabilitation of those with residual disabilities from having been victims of the dread crippler in the past," Dr. Ellwood said.

As regards change in age of patients, Dr. Ellwood asserted that the Kenny foundation, in common with the entire medical profession, is now devoting more and more attention to the disabilities and diseases of old age which a few years ago were regarded as incurable.

Stressing that the number of persons over 65 in the U. S. has increased 300 per cent since 1900, Dr. Ellwood said, "The satisfaction in being able to return a crippled 'oldster' to self-sufficiency, instead of relegating him or her to a rest or nursing home, is great, indeed. This is accomplished by teaching people to live full lives, in spite of their disabilities."

TREASURY AGENT: Moonshining, Baby Of Prohibition, Still Grosses $60 Million A Year And Operates On Big - Syndicate Basis

This is another in a series telling of the fight of U. S. Treasury men on crime, much of it well organized by some of the country's most notorious hoodlums. The series is taken from "Treasury Agent," just published by Simon and Schuster, Inc., and written by Andrew Tully, well-known newspaperman.

BY ANDREW TULLY

CITIZENS WHO FONDLY BELIEVE that repeal of Prohibition drove the racketeers out of the hard-drink dodge would get their illusions shattered if they could wade through the bulky files of the Treasury Department's Alcohol and Tobacco Tax Division.

Not only are the hoodlums still in the hooch racket, but the racket remains big business.

Alcohol Tax officials are leery of setting any figures, possibly because they don't want to encourage any would-be bootleggers. But any conscientious exploration of the Alcohol Tax files on criminal prosecutions will establish that today's rumrunners are doing a business that grosses at least $60,000,000 a year. In the process, they are gyping Uncle Sam out of about $35,000,000 annually in taxes.

The layman also is wont to think about today's bootlegger in terms of the hillbilly moonshiner with his family still tucked away on the side of a Southern mountain.

It is true that the Southern States are still the biggest law-enforcement problem, requiring more man hours of investigation and prosecution than any other region in the country. But the big syndicates are still operating in the metropolitan centers, notably in the New York-New Jersey-Pennsylvania region. These outfits operate huge distilleries comparable in many cases to legitimate establishments, and the profits and tax frauds are enormous.

In the Midwest during the pre-war era the racket was the personal property of remnants of the old Al Capone gang, in cooperation with assorted home-grown mobsters in the neighboring states. Agents regularly cracked down on illegal alcohol plants in Chicago, but they discovered that the mob was decentralizing - that is, they were setting up stills in the quiet countrysides of the area on the theory there was more chance of getting away with it in a bucolic location.

One of the biggest of these country-lane operations was broken up by the Alcohol Tax sleuths in the area around Kenosha, Wis., in a marathon project that lasted almost a year.

Bossed by a gang of Wisconsin hoodlums, this criminal corporation operated nine distilleries on various farms for 52 profitable months - from 1936 to 1941. Each distillery produced 12,000 gallons of 180-proof alcohol every month, or a total of 624,000 gallons during the 52 months of operation.

Since the Federal tax at the time was six dollars a gallon, the tax fraud was a whopping $3,500,000. Meanwhile peddling it at the price then of $14.50 per five-gallon can, the gang grossed $1,809,600.

Top bandits in this gang were Frank Infusino and Willie Covelli, partners in a meat and grocery store in Kenosha, and Frank Cosenzino, who was a hoodlum both publicly and privately. All three had been arrested in 1932 for a murder in Portage, Wis., but while the case was awaiting trial the principal witness against them mysteriously committed "suicide." With the witness thus disposed of, the boys beat the rap.

Cosenzino, who stayed in the background as a kind of treasurer who doled out protection money to corrupt cops, never was indicted in the case. But he got his on a July afternoon in 1941, when he sustained two holes in the head from the guns of a rival gang while cavorting at a riding stable at Twin Lakes, near Kenosha.

Covelli, who incredibly beat the bootlegging rap, also died of lead poisoning, either because his pals suspected there were private reasons for his acquittal or because they figured he had been too careless in his dealings with an Alcohol Tax undercover agent.

That undercover agent was Thomas Bailey, now chief of Alcohol Tax's Enforcement Branch in Washington, but then working out of the Chicago office.

Federal agents already had seized a still on a farm in Franksville, Wis., when Bailey went undercover in the spring of 1940. Prowling about the countryside, and cocking an ear at listening posts in Chicago hangouts, investigators concluded the seized still was only one of a chain operating in the Kenosha area.

Bailey's entree into bootlegging society was supplied by one Louis Kaplan, a small-time operator who had been nabbed some time back and was willing to co-operate in return for honorable mention in court.

One sunny morning in May, 1940, Bailey and Kaplan dropped in on a bar run by Walter Schlager at 5601 Twenty-fourth Avenue, Kenosha.

Schlager was delighted to see Kaplan, and the two reminisced about old times while Bailey stood there smiling amiably. Finally Kaplan took Bailey's arm.

"Walter, I want you to meet my new partner, Joe Sherman. We're looking for a place to put up a still." Schlager pumped Bailey's hand cordially, then turned business-like. "I'll see the law and get you a place and see you in a few days," Schlager told them. But it wasn't until June 6 that Schlager finally reported he had fixed things with the law enforcement and had found a farm, for the still.

Bailey and Kaplan went out to look over the farm, but decided the time had come to change tactics.

Thus on July 9, 1940, Bailey showed up alone at Schlager's tavern and told him Kaplan was "in trouble," and that they couldn't put up the still after all.

"Kaplan's the still man," Bailey told Schlager. "I don't know much about stills, so I think I'll go into the business of buying alcohol as it is much less trouble."

Schlager was eager. "You go see Bill Covelli and tell him I sent you and he'll sell you all you want," he told Bailey.

At Covelli's home nearby, Bailey introduced himself as "Joe Sherman from Chicago" and told Covelli Walter Schlager had sent him. Covelli was cautious. He claimed Schlager had not phoned him, as arranged, and said he hadn't been in the alky business for some time.

But when Bailey told him he had been paying $14.50 per five-gallon can for the stuff in Chicago, Covelli got interested. It seems he had a friend in Milwaukee who might be able to fix Bailey up. They arranged to meet later in the week, through Schlager.

Bailey showed up at Schlager's place the following Friday, and Schlager gave him the pitch. He said Bailey wouldn't have to see Covelli, that he, Schlager, would handle the deal and that his share would be five cents a gallon. He told Bailey he could have five hundred gallons, or more, the following Thursday at $14.50 a can.

Bailey demurred. "I'm scared to deal with those Italians," he told Schlager. "They might hijack me."

Schlager scoffed. "Don't worry," he said, "I'm in with the law; you won't get hijacked."

But Bailey wanted to deal with Covelli; he was convinced Bill was one of the key men. So the following Monday he showed up at Schlager's with another undercover agent, Joseph Mastandrea, whom he introduced only as "Joe."

Bailey had a gripe -- he complained that $14.50 a can was too much. They argued about the matter for a while, and then Bailey made his pitch, he suggested that Schlager get Covelli over so they could settle it with him. He was anxious, of course, that Mastandrea get a look at Covelli for purposes of identification in court.

Covelli showed up shortly and was introduced to Mastandrea. They exchanged hard-mouthed pleasantries in Italian. When he got down to talking price, however, Covelli was firm. "It's fourteen fifty and no less," he told Bailey. "That's what you pay in Chicago."

Bailey pointed out the stuff would have to be hauled 140 miles into Chicago, but Covelli stood his ground. "It's a good buy," he told Bailey, "because I guarantee you it won't be hijacked. This is a clean operation." Bailey grumbled, but accepted; after all, Mastandrea had gotten his look-see at Covelli.

For a "drop," or delivery place, Bailey and Schlager agreed on a farm three miles out of town owned by one Joe Lescauskis, alias Joe Laskie.

The arrangement was that Bailey should drive his car into the barn on the premises, where some of Covelli's men would help him load the alcohol. He ordered 25 five-gallon cans for delivery the following night and 50 cans for the night after that.

Conferring with his colleagues in Chicago, Bailey agreed that no arrest should be made the first night. The Feds wanted to give Covelli and his pals a little rope, to see where it might lead them.

So on the following night Bailey paid Schlager $362.50 in advance, and he and Mastandrea drove out to Joe Laskie's farm and took delivery of the 25 cans. Then they drove to Chicago and handed the evidence over to the Alcohol Tax laboratory.

The next night, Bailey and Mastandrea stayed away from Laskie's farm. But two carloads of other Alcohol agents swooped down on the barn while two members of the gang were unloading Bailey's order from a Ford sedan and stacking it in a closet pending Bailey's arrival. The pinch was put on one Emil Richio and one Harry Papavasiliu.

Covelli of course, was still at large and so was Frank Infusino, still a shadowy figure in the gang's operations.

Bailey's life now was in danger but he went blithely on his undercover way. Ten days after the raid at Joe Laskie's, he dropped in on Schlager at Schlager's home for a chat. Schlager was most upset, to put it mildly.

"Joe, you're getting me in trouble," he told Bailey. "Covelli's mad as hell. He says you're a goddamn Federal agent and that I'm a stool pigeon. I tried to talk to him, but he grabbed me by the throat and said he ought to kill me. He claims Kaplan introduced you around so the government would go easy on him in his case."

Bailey grinned easily and told Schlager not to worry. But as he left the Schlager home he realized he couldn't do any more business in Kenosha. He returned to straight detective work.

A little less than a month later, this assignment took Bailey to a farm on Sheridan Road, just outside the city of Lake Geneva, Wis. With him were five other agents. Without showing themselves, they picked up evidence that a sizable still was operating on the farm.

The farm was placed under 24-hour surveillance, and three days later agents grabbed one Arthur Richio as he was driving away from the farm in a car loaded with 45 cans of alcohol. He was the brother of the Emil Richio who had been picked up at Laskie's farm.

Bailey et al decided the time had come to raid the farm, owned by Herman Yanke. At the time the still was raided there were no conspirators on hand, so the agents hung around to wait for somebody to show up. About an hour after the agents arrived, a Plymouth sedan drove onto the farm.

Agents seized the driver, Sam Gottlieb, and his companion, Frank Cucunato. In the car were found 150 pounds of yeast and some other supplies.

The agents figured Gottlieb had planned to move out a load of alcohol, so Agent John Huntley took the wheel of the car and drove out toward the main highway with his lights out. Two other investigators followed in another car.

Several hundred yards from the barn, Huntley noticed a car pulled up on the side of the road. As his car approached, a man jumped out of the car and started to climb into the car Huntley was driving. Recognizing Huntley, he took off again through some woods. Huntley gave chase and caught him, but in the tussle that followed the man got away.

The car that had been pulled up on the side of the road had sped off during the chase, but the other agents had used their eyes. The driver was Frank Infusino, and the vehicle was a 1940 Ford bearing the Wisconsin license number 686-629.

Checking next day, agents found this number listed as having been issued to a Kenosha auto dealer, but the dealer showed documents which proved he had sold the car, with the license plates, to Frank Infusino.

Finally, in the fall of 1941, the roundup of the gang reached a climax when the Feds nabbed Infusino and Covelli. On October 22, 1941, Infusino, Covelli and 21 others were indicted by a Federal grand jury at Milwaukee, and four months later - in February, 1942 - this corporation of hoodlums went on trial.

As the trial wore on, the evidence against the racketeers piled up. But late one Friday afternoon, Infusino's counsel suddenly produced a registration card from the Lorraine Hotel in Chicago which showed that Infusino had occupied Room 218 on the night of August 22, 1940 -- the night Federal agents had placed Infusino on the Yanke farm.

At the prosecution's table, United States Attorney Carl Becker conferred with Agent Tom Bailey.

"It looks as if we're in bad shape, Tom," said Becker.

Bailey turned to Becker. "Wait a minute, Carl," he told him. "There's something fishy here. We've got to get a recess until Monday so we can check." Becker asked for, and got, the recess.

Living in Milwaukee at the time was a renowned expert in questioned documents, John Tyrell, who had testified in the Lindbergh kidnapping trial.

On Monday morning, Tyrell was the government's first witness. Yes he had examined the hotel registration cards. Calmly, he ticked off his findings.

1. The printed number on the Infusino registration card was in a lower position than the numbers on the other cards.

2. A microscopic examination had disclosed that a thinner ink had been used to print the Infusino card.

3. This ink filled in tiny flaws in the die, whereas on the other cards, printed with a heavier ink, the flaws were clearly distinguishable.

4. All the cards but that signed by Frank Infusino had a slight offset on the reverse side, the result of lying one atop the other during the printing operation.

5. The stock used to print the Infusino card was thicker than that of the other cards.

"This card," said Tyrell, waving it at the jury, "is a maverick."

Seventeen of the 23 defendants were found guilty, including Frank Infusino. Covelli was acquitted, apparently because some members of the jury held that he was the victim of entrapment.

Frank Infusino was sentenced to five years in prison as the leader of this elaborate syndicate. Several months later he was tried and convicted for perjury in connection with the spurious registration card and got another three years. By that time, the mob had shot Covelli very dead after convicting him of being a suspicious person.

DUCHESSES ARE IN STYLE

Early in "Roberta," an over-stuffed revival of the Broadway hit, with which Bob Hope kicked the new season all the way back to 1933, Howard Keel says to his aristocratic old auntie, "She's given me the air," and his auntie -- so help me -- replies: "For a minute I thought she'd given you an heir." I never thought that joke would see the light of day again.

Later, Mr. Hope bounded -- and I use that word advisedly -- into the dress shop which forms the backdrop of "Roberta" and declared "When I walked in here I thought it was Trujillo's Rumpus Room." That was the newfangled, updated type joke which warred with the old-fangled original book joke and both types were pretty awful. The Jerome Kern score which contains such great tunes as "Smoke Gets In Your Eyes," "Yesterdays," and "The Touch of Your Hand," was a lovely lilting delight but the book was an elephantine bore which seemed to have great difficulty finding enough plot to fill out the ninety minutes.

The score for musicals, whether they be originals like "Cinderella" or updated old ones like "Revenge with Music," has been low, very low. Insofar as musical comedy on television is concerned, I have just issued a pronunciamento which might be described as Crosby's Fourth Law which goes: if it hasn't got Mary Martin in it, the hell with it. (The only two musicals which held together at all were "Peter Pan" and "Annie Get Your Gun," both with Miss M. at the helm.)

There were a few goodies. Hope delivered a couple of standup monologues which were pretty funny. Anna Maria Alberghetti was lovely. Janis Paige, as a sort of caricature of a red hot French lollipop, was full of bounce and giner. And the settings and costumes in color were eye-filling and they helped mighty in distracting our attention from the script.

Mostly, though, Roberta simply was a reminder that 1933 (when "Roberta" was a very tasteful and chic musical) was much longer ago than most of us remember. Restoration comedy seems to be more with it. However, the man I hire to keep his ear to the ground and report any ground swells of popular taste, points out that this is just one more evidence of a trend toward luxury.

During the hot summer months when there was nothing much to keep me home but reruns of old Westerns, I played hookey and went to the movies quite a lot and I saw, among other things, "The Reluctant Debutante" and "Indiscreet," both of them big hits. Frankly, I think both movies are awfully skimpy of plot, character, laughter, and everything else that makes a good movie -- except one thing, an atmosphere of posh luxury. My ear-on-the-ground fellow assures me that we're all tired of the swamp and back alley drama and there is a great national hunger for plays and movies and maybe even TV wherein the heroine rides around in Rolls Royces (like "Indiscreet") and goes to one posh party after another (like "Reluctant Debutante").

"What I mean is that duchesses are back in fashion again," my ear-to-the-ground chap said unhappily. "The Bronx heroine is climax. There was a longish and in eclipse. The accents are going very funny bit of a Jackie Gleason film in which Gleason, Audrey Mepect Lerner and Lowe to announce dows and Art Carney appeared -- a musical version of 'The Green Hat.' I have spoken."

So there you are. Meanwhile on that other network, CBS-TV unfurled all its stars and bright prospects on the Ed Sullivan show and it seemed to me that the brightest of these were Wayne and Shuster who opened the show with a song and skit called "That's Television" that was fast and furious and powerfully funny and very imaginative and what else can you ask?

Everything after that was an anti-climax. There was a longish and in eclipse. The accents are going very funny bit of a Jackie Gleason film in which Gleason, Audrey Mepect Lerner and Lowe to announce dows and Art Carney appeared -- a musical version of 'The Green Hat.' I have spoken."

TE LA DI OABOUT YOUR TV SCHEDULE

This coming week you will be aware of many changes in your TV schedule as the fall season gets going. A number of new programs are making their appearance each week as well as many of the familiar ones returning with network and time changes. A few time slots remain vacant or are listed as "TBA" on the schedule.

The biggest change comes with the demise of NBC-affiliated station WBUF, effective October 1. On that date, you will notice that WGR is dropping many of its ABC programs and adding NBC shows. There will be a dearth of ABC programming for this area until Buffalo's new station, WKBW, Channel 7, gets on the air.

DAYTIME HOURS FOR WNAE

A 6-member committee of the Federal Communications Commission has denied an extension of daytime programming petitioned by the Daytime Broadcasters Association. The chief reason for the refusal is that "it would create interference for clear channel stations" which reach a greater number of listeners because of superior power.

This means WNAE will be compelled to adhere to the ruling permitting broadcasting until sunset. On December's shortest day, 4:45 p. m. will silence the local radio station but this will gradually lengthen as do the days. February sunsets, for instance, will be about 5:45 p. m.

PAY TV FOR BASEBALL

Skiatron, a pay-as-you-see-TV system, will be operating in major league baseball during the 1959 season. The San Francisco Giants have contracted for coverage and work is scheduled to begin soon on mechanical installations.

NATIONWIDE PHYSICS CLASS

Beginning October 6, the National Broadcasting Company will televise coast-to-coast a network educational program in an effort to improve scientific education. More than 300 colleges and universities across the country are planning to carry for credit the college course in "Atomic Age Physics". The network program will be called "Continental Classroom".

Sponsors of the venture with NBC-TV are the American Association of Colleges for Teacher Education, The Ford Foundation and the Fund for Advancement of Education. In addition, financial assistance is being given by American Telephone & Telegraph, International Business Machines, Pittsburgh Plate Glass and United States Steel.

This will be the first time a college course has been offered on a nationwide basis. Dr. Harvey White, professor of physics at University of California, will be chief instructor, with many other noted teachers and scientists participating. The program will be telecast from 6:30 to 7 a. m. local time, Mondays through Fridays, from October 6 to June 5. The first semester will include kinematics, light, dynamics, electricity, magnetism; the second semester emphasis will be on nuclear and atomic physics. Demonstrations and experiments will be part of the course. TV presentations will be supplemented by periodic tests, textbook reading assignments, problem solving and other out-of-class activities.

IN THE FUTURE

"Chance for Romance", a lonely hearts club via TV, will be an ABC series starting October 13, Mondays through Fridays at 2-2:30 p. m. Other ABC shows to be introduced next month will include "Day In Court", "Peter Lind Hayes Show", "Mother's Day", "Liberace Show", and "Beat the Clock".

PREVIEW concert, first of four-part series, will feature the New York Philharmonic on CBS-TV at 5 p. m., Sunday, November 30. JERRY LEWIS will be seen on NBC-TV Saturday, October 18, 9-10 p. m., and again on Wednesday, December 10, 9-10 p. m.

JOHNNY BELINDA will be the Hallmark Hall of Fame 90-minute production on NBC-TV scheduled for Monday, October 13, 9:30-11 p. m.

MILTON BERLE starring in the Kraft Music Hall makes its debut Wednesday, October 8, 9-9:30 p. m., on the NBC network.

MOTHER GOOSE, a Shirley Temple Storybook presentation, will be seen on NBC-TV Sunday, December 21, 8-9 p. m.

SWISS FAMILY ROBINSON, with Laraine Day as the mother and Walter Pidgeon as the father, will be presented on NBC-TV Sunday, October 12, 6:30-7:30 p. m. OMNIBUS starts its seventh season Sunday, October 26 at 5 p. m. on NBC-TV. "Capital Punishment" will be the first program with noted trial lawyer, Joseph N. Welch, guiding the show.

GATEWAYS TO THE MIND, Bell Telephone's first of four science programs for the year, will be seen on NBC-TV Thursday, October 23, 8-9 p. m. "Alphabet Conspiracy" will be televised January 26, and two repeat programs will be offered during the season, "Strange Case of the Cosmic Rays" on Sunday, November 23 and "Unchained Goddess" on Sunday, March 22.

mittee which provided an authentic Japanese dinner and program for those who attended. She is standing next to a table of Japanese curios loaned by several members for the occasion.

Eggheads Accepted

By Inez Robb

Something -- maybe Sputnik, maybe the increasing difficulty of getting into college, maybe quiz-whiz show loot -- is making the egghead increasingly acceptable in the high school or off-beat generation.

These glad tidings are contained in an opinion poll taken by the Institute of Student Opinion for Scholastic Magazines, a survey that bears the impressive title "Attitudes of High School Youth Toward Careers and Guidance".

The poll demonstrates that it is now thoroughly respectable to be a teen-age egghead. (Hey, what about a new horror movie, "I Was a Teen-Age Egghead"?)

The incipient Phi Beta Kappa now has status, with 94.8 percent of 11,416 students polled in 284 junior and senior high schools in all 48 states positive that good grades are important to their future welfare.

The elevation of the greasy grind is further enhanced by 36.3 percent of the students who threw caution to the wind and insisted that "good marks make a student more popular" with his fellow students as well as with his teachers and his old folks. Only a low, low 2.1 percent of the kids voted that good grades were only for squares.

It is also mighty encouraging to note that 29.6 percent of the students polled believe that hard work or good, old-fashioned sweat-of-the-brow will advance one's career farther than any other single factor.

The survey asked the youngsters which three of seven factors (hard work, intelligence, personality, good or bad breaks, money, influential friends or influential relatives) would, in their opinion, have the greatest effect on their ultimate careers.

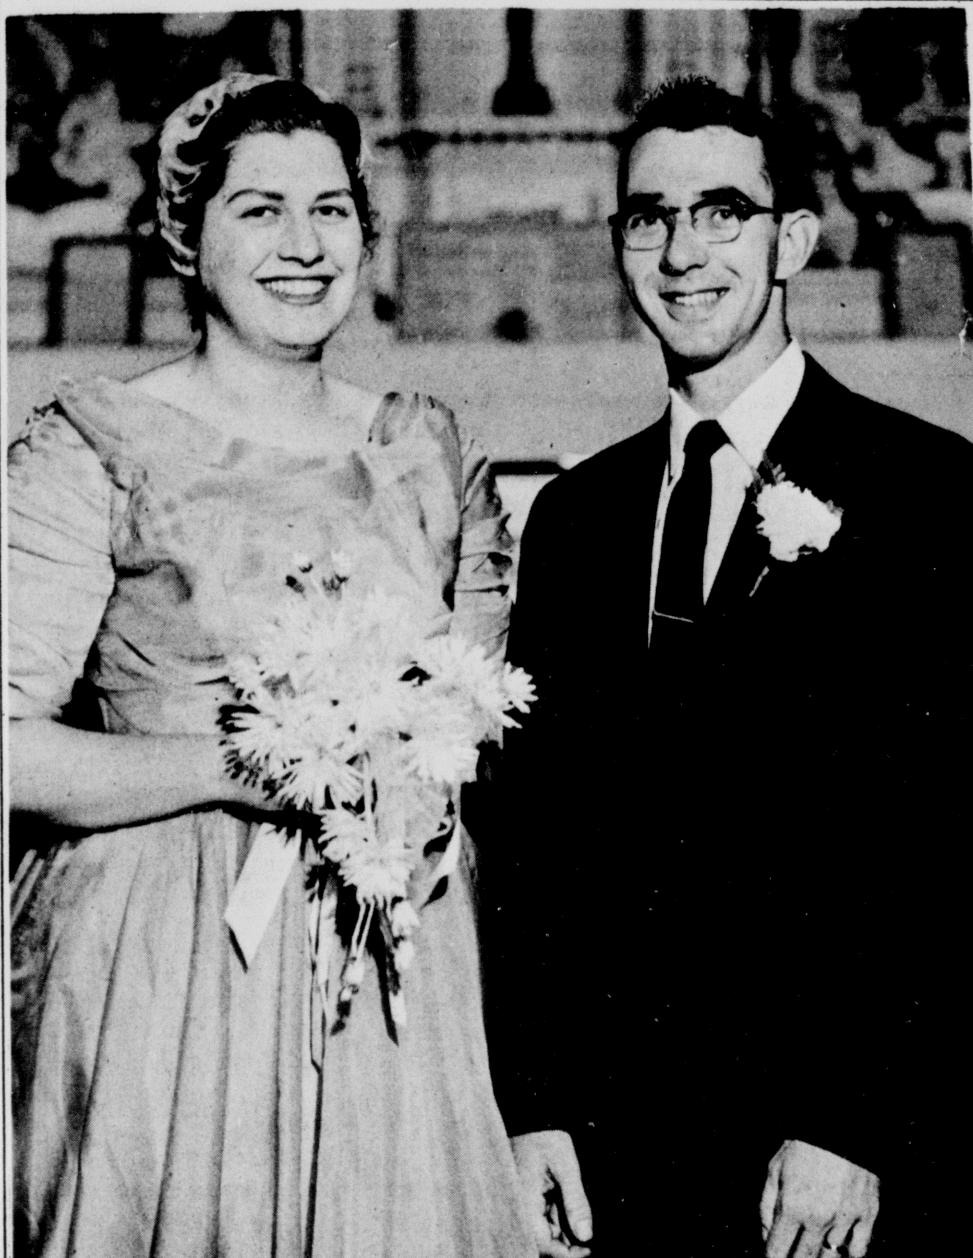

To their credit, the kids rated hard work, intelligence and personality in that order. Twenty-eight percent plugged for intelligence and 25.6 for personality. Everything else, even influential relatives, ran right out of the money. Only one percent rated influential kith and kin as an asset. A mere 5.9 had faith in money as the touchstone to future success.

From this I would judge that the younger generation is willing to stand on its own feet and isn't mercenary. Only a cynic would write it off as merely inexperienced.

When they look for their first full-time job, the three factors most important to teen-agers will be "future security" (21.5 percent), opportunity for advancement (21 percent) and "challenging, interesting work" (18.9). Rugged Americans will rejoice that 39.9 percent believe that opportunity and challenging work are more important than mere security in this era of creeping conformity. "High pay" as an inducement in that first full-time job rated only an 11.9 percent endorsement. And it is cheering to note that at least 10.4 percent feel "service to mankind" the most important factor of all.

Mathematics, which has been in the doghouse for so long, is looking up, too. Almost one-third of the boys voted it the subject that would best fit them for their ultimate careers. But then, 24.3 of the boys hope to become engineers. Interestingly enough, 17.1 of the girls want to study medicine, while only 6.9 percent of the boys yearn to be men in white.

All in all, the survey shows the younger generation isn't as bad as painted -- but, on the other hand, it couldn't be.

FRANKLIN KNIGHTS UPSET DRAGONS IN SATURDAY GAME

A smaller Franklin line out-charged the Warren line while the Franklin quarterback scored two touchdowns in the first half and the visiting Knights dumped Warren, 14 to 6, in a District 10, Section II encounter on War Memorial Field last Saturday afternoon.

Franklin signal caller Butch Conrad opened the scoring on the fifth play of the game when he skirted right end, reversed his field and scooted 50 yards to paydirt. Half-back Walt Thomas converted to give Franklin a 7 to 0 lead.

Early in the second quarter Conrad scored again, this time from the three yard line and Thomas booted the ball between the uprights to boost the Knight's lead to 14 to 0.

Late in the same quarter, Conrad, not a particularly speedy back but a real shifty runner threaded his way through the entire Warren team for an apparent third TD on an 80 yard punt return only to have the score disallowed because an eager teammate had clipped the last Warren tackler chasing him.

The Dragons, especially the forward wall, looked not at all like the same spirited team which upended Corry the previous week with hard blocking and tackling. They engineered their only score late in the final quarter on a 91 yard drive. Some fine running by junior halfback John Colvin, who showed plenty of ability during the entire game, and two passes helped advance the ball to the Franklin five yard line from where quarterback Lou Mascaro passed to end Bill Brumagin in the end zone for the Dragons' only TD.

 WARREN COUNTY GRID ACTIVITY NEXT WEEK END

Only one football game will be played in Warren County next week end, while two county grid squads will play away games.

Youngsville will travel to Northern Area on Saturday afternoon for the only grid encounter scheduled in the county. The host Knights won their season opener at Sheffield last Saturday, 26 to 21, while the Eagles have been beaten twice, by Lawrence Park, 19 to 12, and by Saegertown, 20 to 14.

The Warren Dragons will travel to Titusville for a Saturday afternoon Section II game at Carter Field. In past years Titusville has played Friday night games. The Dragons have a 1-1 slate with a 14 to 0 win over Corry and a 14 to 6 setback at the hands of Franklin. The Rockets have dropped two games, 13 to 7 at Oil City and 37 to 13 at Grove City.

The Sheffield Wolverines will travel to St. Marys for an Allegheny Mountain League contest on Friday night. The Orange and Black own a 1-1 record with a 54 to 0 win over the Warren Reserves and a 26 to 21 loss to Northern Area. The Flying Dutchmen, aiming for their third consecutive unbeaten and untied football season, romped over Kane, 38 to 6, in their only game of the season.

 AREA FOOTBALL RESULTS

WARREN COUNTY -- Franklin outcharged Warren, 14 to 6, Northern Area topped Sheffield, 26 to 21, and Saegertown came from behind to beat Youngsville, 20 to 14.

MEN'S GOLF DAY

The CVCC men had a full handicap medal tournament last Thursday, with single winners in each flight as follows: first flight, Hegg Schmidt, 35; second, Walt Dremann, 36; third, Dean Anderson 36; fourth, Carl Lundahl, 35. The "never won" tournament was not held because all who were present had been winners in previous competitions.

Today they will pay off for the least putts taken on a nine-hole round. Next Thursday is the grand finale, with more prizes than usual and a medal play tournament with full handicap. Championship presentations also will be made.

BEAT THE PRO AND FIGHT CANCER

The fight against cancer will be benefited next Sunday, September 28, when area golfers will attempt to better the nine hole scores of CVCC pro Fred Lindstrom and Chautauqua, N.Y., pro Fred Drake at the Babe Didrikson Zaharias Beat the Pro open golf tournament at the Kinzua Valley course. Tee off time is 12 noon.

Dr. John Larson, president of the Warren County unit of the American Cancer Society will present Sword Trophies, symbols of the ACS, to the man and woman golfer posting the lowest net score for nine holes. Proceeds for the affair will go to the Babe Didrikson Zaharias memorial fund used to aid cancer research. Non-golfers can purchase spectator tickets for the tournament from Warren Y-Teen members.

INDUSTRIAL LEAGUE TOURNEY
POSTPONED TO SATURDAY

Inclement weather conditions last Sunday were responsible for the postponement of the annual Warren County Industrial Golf League tournament to this coming Saturday.

Play is scheduled to resume at 9 o'clock on the Kinzua Valley Golf Course. The few who completed the 18-hole grind last Sunday can count their scores as posted, or may play the 18 over this week end. There will be three flights on a handicap basis.

Awards will be presented and refreshments served following the day's play.

At the Kinzua course Tuesday night a playoff between Logan's and Bill's Range gave the former team sole possession of third place and dropped Bill's to fourth.

MORE HELP FOR SEWAGE PLANTS URGED

Out of the conventions held recently by the American Fisheries Society and the International Association of Game, Fish and Conservation Commissioners in Philadelphia came several resolutions, some of which strike very close to home. Obviously our local problems are not as local as we often believe. One resolution was summed up in this way, "Because pollution of many of the nation's surface waters comprise interstate or regional problems, and sewage treatment plant construction has been greatly stimulated by grants, the Congress is urged to double the current plant construction grants program."

We hope they succeed. Warren just received a quarter of a million dollars worth of help from federal funds. Twice that much would have been even more welcome. Perhaps other communities which soon will be told to build, or else, may enjoy increased assistance if the conservation groups are successful.

ALSO SUGGESTED The national conservationists also came up with some other suggestions which touch all of us. In education they urged emphasis on biological science as well as physical. They recommended the selection of chemicals that can be used to eliminate various species of undesirable fishes.

(We wonder who has the right to decide what an undesirable fish is? All of us are not fishermen and perhaps there is a good reason in the balance of nature that all species of fish be allowed to make their way as has been their fashion in the preceding centuries.)

They asked federal and state land management agencies to confer with state game departments before entering into large-scale programs to eradicate browse, shrub, and tree growth through mechanical, chemical and other methods over large expanses of terrain, because such eradication programs destroy the food and cover needed by wildlife.

(It works the other way, too. Over population by animals such as deer can destroy the young trees which make the forest of tomorrow. What we need is balance, and the foresters with whom we have enjoyed an enlightening relationship are aware of the needed balance. They work at it daily.)

The conservationists added their bit to the concern over our water supply which unfortunately is not shared by enough Americans who in their selfish approach to every subject are prone to actions which retard action on water-preserving projects. They proposed a committee on water resources to help coordinate planning, development, and management of this basic and vital resource, the gradual loss of which is a critical problem facing the nation.

DEER SEASON NEAR

Killing a deer is a sport that is not far away for perhaps eighty thousand Pennsylvania hunters. That many may purchase archery season licenses to be used during the special season from October 4 to 24. They may kill either bucks or does.

Because of the longer season and the expected increase in the number of bowmen it is probable that the kill will exceed the 1,358 brought down last year from October 5 to 12 by 55,554 arrowboys. And girls.

Warming up for the big month, the archers have been firing in shoots in all areas of the state, topped by the state field and archery tournament. Also a big competition was the Pennsylvania bowhunters' festival which featured live buffalo and live boar hunts.

To increase the safety of those afield archer clubs will hold clinics on September 27. The correct use of hunting arrows will be stressed.

* * *

Antlerless deer licenses go on sale during the week of October 6. Archery season permit holders do not need them during the special days. . . . Warren county predators yielded $248 in bounty payments to those who brought them in during August. They took the form of 11 grey foxes, 51 reds, no great horned owls.

Best pistol shots in the game protecting staff will be found in the southeast division. Their team of five beat those from other sections of the state for the President's Trophy. Best individual shot was George Miller, Forest county protector. They were using .38's.

Every bird seen sleeping with crows is not necessarily one of them. On Featherbed Hill, a crow rookery, white birds were seen roosting with the blackies. Some thought they were albinos. Close examination revealed they were egrets, a few of which are seen along our streams in the late summer.

Egrets once were nearly killed off for their plumage. But protection has restored them and now they often are seen as far north as the Canadian border. They are a large white heron, a little smaller than the great blue heron. The American egret is the largest and has a yellow bill. The snowy egret is smaller and has a black bill. The immature blue heron also is white, has a black bill, and stays white the first two or three years of his life.

We mention this because egrets are closely protected and efforts to shoot an "albino" crow will be a poor excuse if you win a white heron.

TYPICAL ACTION that took place in the evenly matched Sheffield-Northern Area game played Saturday. The camera catches Sheffield's Rudolph picking up a short gain.

The Knights emerged 26-21 victors in the contest.

SHEFFIELD'S Rudolph drove 9 yards off left tackle to the one-yard line in the final quarter of game with Northern Area. Slater scored on the next play for the final TD scoring of the contest, which ended 26-21.

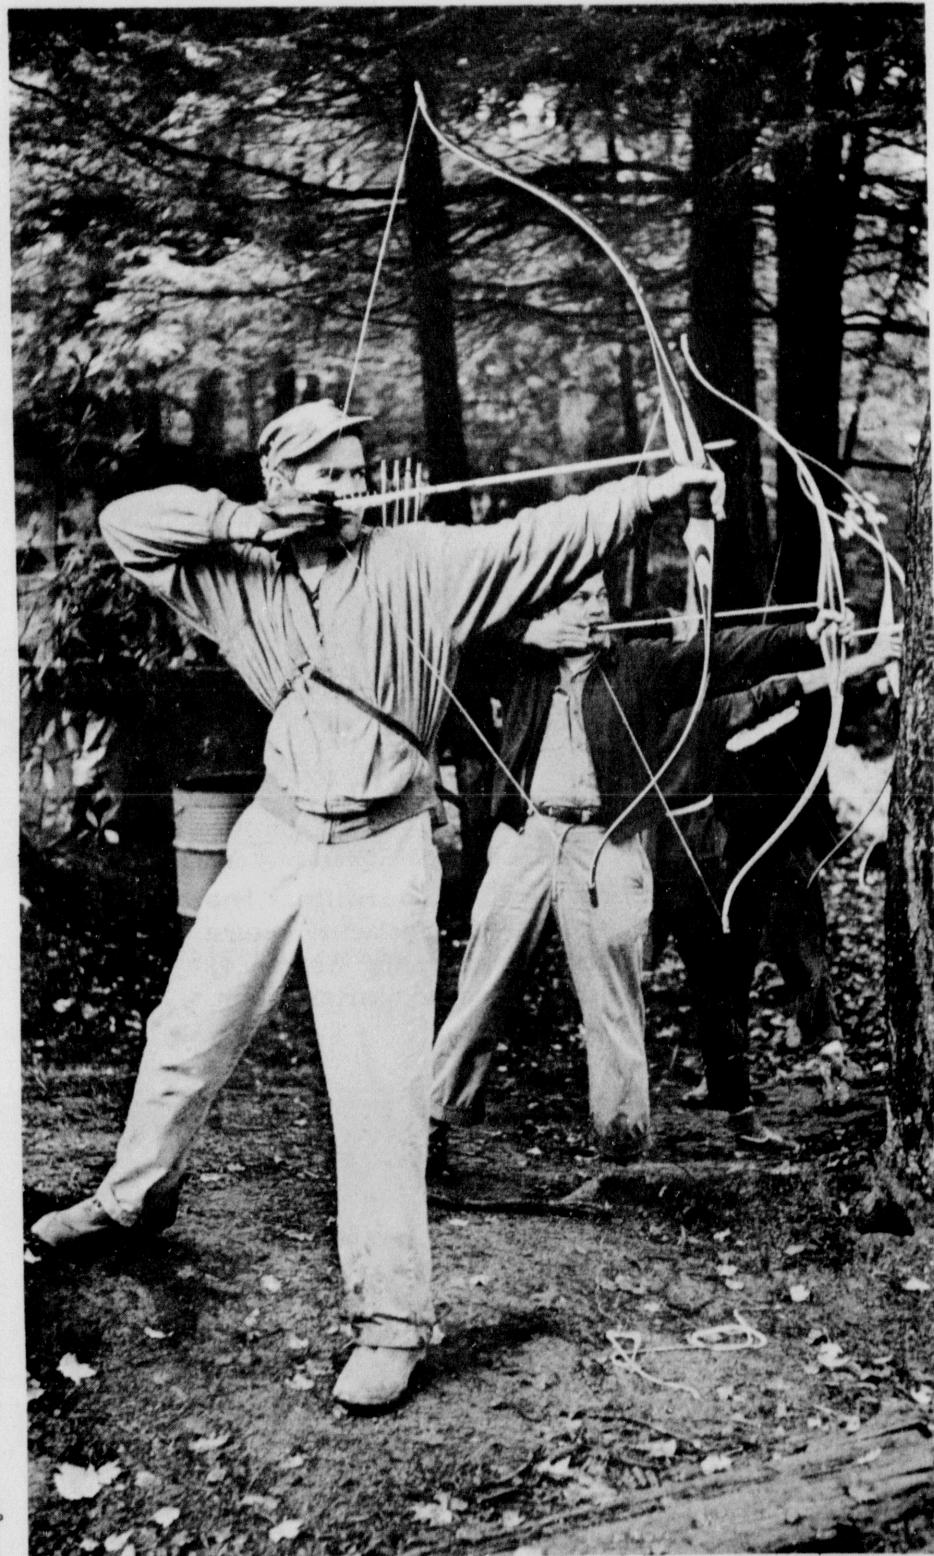

FINALLY, Florist Sherm Offerle has nursed this Monstera deliciosa for approximately 20 years and just a week ago today it flowered for the first time.

A member of the philodendron family, the plant's first flower is eight inches wide. The plant itself stands five and one-half feet tall.

By coincidence the September 4th edition of the Florist Review reported a similar plant had blossomed after many years of waiting in Vernon, Ala.

PAT for Sheffield was scored by McNeal with this pass reception.

LONG GAIN -- Junior halfback John Colvin picks up 21 yards and a first down against Franklin on this run in the first quarter of Saturday's game with Franklin. Colvin's running in the fourth quarter helped propel the Dragons on a 91 yard march on their only TD of the game which Franklin won, 14 to 6.

PUNT RETURN -- Halfback Bob Haslet follows a blocker to return a Franklin punt to the Warren 41 yard line in second quarter action.

A SIX YARD GAIN was made by halfback Dick Terry here trying to elude a Franklin tackler early in second quarter play in Saturday's game which saw Franklin upset Warren, 14 to 6.
